NATIONAL REGISTER LISTING

Listing on the National Register is largely honorary. The National Register listing does not place obligations on private property owners, nor does it place restrictions on the use, treatment, or disposition of private property. National Register listing does not lead to public acquisition of the property, nor does it require or permit public access to the property.

THE NATIONAL REGISTER LISTING DOES:

- Honor a historic property by recognizing its importance to the local community, the state, or the nation.
- Encourage the preservation of historic properties by documenting their significance.
- List properties only if they meet the National Register criteria for evaluation.
- Facilitate the review of federally funded, licensed, or permitted projects to determine their effects on historic properties. Provide an opportunity to consult with government agencies to mitigate projects that will adversely affect historic properties.
- Provide information about historic resources for planning purposes.
- Offer federal tax benefits to owners of income-producing historic properties if they rehabilitate their properties according to preservation standards.

THE NATIONAL REGISTER LISTING DOES NOT:

- Provide a marker or plaque for registered properties
- Restrict the rights of the property owners
- Require that properties be maintained, restored, or repaired
- Prevent a resource's destruction by federal, state, local or private development
- Guarantee that grant funds will be available for projects
- Require property owners to follow preservation standards on their properties unless they wish to qualify for tax benefits
- Automatically invoke local historic district zoning or landmark designation
- List individual properties if the owner objects, or list a historic district if the majority of property owners object.
